It has plenty of randomized floors, changing positive and negative effects and the occasional surprise. Let's dive in and learn all about this exciting game mode!Beware: The Cube is challenging content for unoptimized characters without supports. Don't waste your ticket entries if you're not ready! Origins of Stern, Cube EntranceThe Cube entrance can be found in all major cities, shown as a icon on the map. An Entrance Ticket is required to access the Cube. These drop from your daily Chaos Dungeon entries by killing the 2nd floor boss within them. Once you've found a Ticket go to the entrance. You can go in solo, auto-match or search/create a lobby to select the people you want to play with.When forming a group, include either a Bard, Paladin or Gunlancer, as their supportive capabilities will boost your survival greatly! Fill the remaining slots with damage dealers.Note that Entrance Tickets can only drop from runs with daily energy! Cube Entrance WindowUpon entering you are greeted with a Setup Area. This is where you can equip Battle Items and change into your Cube Build if you forgot to set it up beforehand. Once everyone is ready you can enter, at which point changing skills and items is disabled. Make sure you're ready! Cube Setup AreaThere are several floor types that can be identified by the color of their portal before entering them: You are given a timer for each floor, but if the time runs out... it's not over yet! Ghosts will start spawning to prevent you from clearing the floor by inflicting massive amounts of damage. Avoid these at any cost while clearing the remaining monsters (excluding ghosts). If you're successful, you can still progress further! End Timer Ghost SpawnsYou are given one random effect per floor. Depending on the effect and floor combination, you may need to alter your playstyle. Plenty of these positive and negative effects can help or break your attempt. They are displayed in the top right corner of your screen, some of which include: Effects that can be hard to deal with: As for positive effects, all of them are great help, but ones that increase your survivability are the best. Health Regeneration, Invincibility and Life Leech are always a welcomed sight! Completing the Cube takes anywhere from 15-19 floors to clear, which gives you the maximum reward: Cube Diamond Chest. These contain Silver, Eternity Essences, Star's Breaths and a green or blue rarity Battle Engraving Recipes. If you fail or your whole party dies you get a chest reward based on the latest attained reward tier: *Note: If you fail before reaching the Bronze Chest reward, you get nothing. Survive and collect your rewards! Written by Choilicious Reviewed by Raxxanterax Some of the best content that you could participate in when you play Lost Ark takes place during the endgame. Some of this endgame content includes events and dungeons like Chaos Dungeons and Cube events. However, if you ever want to start one of these events, you need to complete certain prerequisites. Here, we outline the prerequisites for Cube events. For starters, you need to get a hold of a quest titled Guide Announcement: Cube. It isn't very difficult, but it does require you to be very diligent and patient. Once you unlock Chaos Dungeons, you will notice random drops throughout every playthrough of these dungeons. After doing enough of them, one of these drops will include an item called Entrance Ticket: Cube (Bound). Related: How to unlock the Cube in Lost Ark At that point, you can go to your Journal and select the Guide tab to find the Guide Announcement: Cube quest available for you to begin. Upon completing this quest, you will be able to start doing Cube events. Take advantage of all their rewards.
