The 2010 Masters was the 74th playing of this major championship, and when Phil Mickelson won, it was his third Masters victory. Winner: Phil Mickelson, 272 Where it was played: Augusta National Golf Club, Augusta, Georgia Tournament dates: April 8-11, 2010 Leader after first round: Fred Couples, 66 Leader after second round: Ian Poulter and Lee Westwood, 136 Leader after third round: Lee Westwood, 204What Happened in the 2010 Masters Tournament The big story at the start of the week of the 2010 Masters was Tiger Woods' return to competitive golf. The big story at the end of the week was Phil Mickelson winning his third Masters championship. Woods chose Augusta National as the site of his comeback after not playing for five months due to personal issues, including a stint in a rehab facility. During the five months away, he practiced only in the couple weeks immediately prior to The Masters. Given that, he played remarkably well, eventually finishing fourth with four consecutive rounds below par. Fifty-year-old Fred Couples was the first-round leader, with Mickelson one behind. (Couples finished in sixth place, his last Top 10 finish in any of the majors.) Lee Westwood took the lead in the second round, and held it after the third, one stroke better than Mickelson. Mickelson made up five strokes on the leader in a three-hole stretch of the third round, going eagle-eagle-birdie on holes 13 through 15. The second eagle was a hole-out with a wedge on the par-4 14th. Mickelson missed a third consecutive eagle by mere inches on the 15th hole. In the final round, Westwood was up-and-down on the front nine, and Mickelson was wild off the tee in the middle part of the round. But Mickelson kept managing to escape from trouble — in fact, he went bogeyless in the final round — and moved into the lead with a birdie on the 12th hole. On the par-5 13th, Mickelson hit a spectacular approach shot into the green, playing out of the trees and off pine needles to within four feet of the cup. He missed that eagle putt, but made birdie, then added another on the 15th hole. Westwood kept things interesting by birdying the 17th hole to get back within two strokes, but Mickelson closed it out with another birdie on the final hole. It was Mickelson's third win in The Masters, his fourth major championship victory overall. Jack Nicklaus made his debut as an honorary starter this year, joining Arnold Palmer in hitting the ceremonial opening drives. A future honorary starter, 60-year-old Tom Watson, tied for 18th place, the last time he made the cut in The Masters.2010 Masters Final Scores Phil Mickelson 67-71-67-67—272 Lee Westwood 67-69-68-71—275 Anthony Kim 68-70-73-65—276 K.J. The tournament dates to 1934 and is one of the four major championships of men's professional golf — the first one played each year. In 2026, The Masters will take place April 9-12. 2026 Masters dates: The four-round, 72-hole tournament will be played from Thursday, April 9, through Sunday, April 12. Golf course: Augusta National Golf Club in Augusta, Georgia (View the Augusta National scorecard and hole names) Defending champion: Rory McIlroy won the 2025 Masters in a playoff over Justin Rose, birdying the first extra hole after they had tied at 277.Ticket Information Each year Augusta National conducts a random drawing to award tickets for practice days, and also to award a very small number of tournament day tickets. See the Tickets section of Masters.com for information. Those not lucky enough to get tickets through the annual drawing will mostly like have the secondary market — ticket brokers — as their only other option for getting tickets.Player Invitations The groupings and tee times for golfers entered in The Masters are made by the Augusta National tournament committee. Those pairings are released the week of the tournament, typically on the Tuesday prior to Thursday's first round. See Masters Tee Times and Pairings for general info. See How Golfers Qualify to Play in The Masters for the ways in which a player can earn an invitation.2026 Masters Tournament Week Schedule Monday, April 6: Player arrivals, practice rounds Tuesday, April 7: Practice rounds, Champions Dinner, tee times typically released on this day Wednesday, April 8: Practice rounds, Par-3 Contest Thursday, April 9: Honorary starters ceremony, first round of Masters Tournament Friday, April 10: Second round of tournament Saturday, April 11: Third round of tournament Sunday, April 12: Fourth and final round of tournament, Green Jacket ceremony and trophy presentation More Masters Tournament reading: HGTV reveals the best glamping spots in the US, including this GA resort travel HGTV reveals the best glamping spots in the US, including this GA resort travel HGTV reveals the best glamping spots in the US, including this GA resort travel
